San Diego Cal Nov 23, 1875—

Dear Sir;

In behalf of the San Diego Society of Natural History I beg of you a reply at your convenience by yourself or some member of your Association replies to the following inquiries upon a subject we have now under consideration and which is of much local and practical importance here:

Have the investigations and observations of scientific men and those interested in the growth of timber upon western prairies and along railroads led to any positive results regarding the influence of Tree and forest culture upon the fall of rain and snow?

Will you oblige me by referring me to any published facts within your knowledge.

I am very Respectfully

J. W. Barnes
